

For Your Safety
 This is a harsh environment—any emergency situation can become life-threatening, especially in summer. Be sure to heed the safety warnings in the park newspapers. Safety concerns include extreme heat and dehydration, unsafe driving, flash floods, and mine hazards. Ask about unpaved road conditions before traveling in the backcountry. Do not use this map for hiking or backcountry road travel. More detailed maps are available at the visitor center and ranger stations.

Entrance Fee
 Please stop at Furnace Creek Visitor Center, Stovepipe Wells Ranger Station, Beatty Ranger Station, or the entrance station at Grapevine to pay the park entrance fee.

North
 0 10 Kilometers
 0 10 Miles

- Vehicles, including bicycles, must stay on roads.
- Unpaved road
 - High clearance recommended
 - 4-wheel-drive road
 - Hiking trail
 - Timbisha Shoshone trust lands
 - Area below sea level
 - Salt flat

- Lodging
- Gas station
- Store
- Radiator water
- Telephone
- Wheelchair accessible
- Airstrip
- Ranger station
- Campgrounds
- Sanitary disposal station
- Food service

To Preserve a Way of Life
 The Timbisha Shoshone Homeland Act of 2000 provides for the tribe's living permanently on lands held in trust within their ancestral homeland. Trust lands, located by a dots at left, are also shown on the large map. The Act also provides special use areas, including the Timbisha Shoshone Natural and Cultural Preservation Area, for sustaining the tribe's traditional cultural and religious activities.

